A LETTER FROM HE-MAN

Greetings from Eternia! We're back with our second action-packed issue of HE-MAN AND THE MASTERS OF THE UNIVERSE MAGAZINE. Together, my friends and I have worked to bring you all the adventure in the universe!

Catch up on the latest news from Earth with Orko.
Test your powers with the Roboto Word Search.
Create a creature of your own design. And, find out in two stories how our never-ending battle with Skeletor proceeds. Finally, don't forget the two fold-out collector posters. To remove them, follow the safety instructions below.

Remember to send us your artwork and your letters. We want to know what you'd like to see in the next issue.

Look for us again in June, when we'll be back with more action, just for you!

Important poster safety information

Note to Adult: To remove the posters: (1) open the magazine to the center; (2) take any "fat" object (like a letter opener) and slip it under the staples to unbend them; then (3) carefully pull out both posters; and (4) unfold them. Once the posters are removed, bend the staples back and the rest of the magazine will stay together.

Dear He-Man,

I am six years old and I like your show very much. You are nice. I hope you beat Skeletor

Matthew Metz
Easton, Maryland

Dear He-Man,

I think you are cute, and Orko is adorable. If I lived on Eternia, I would be fighting on your side. (I would be Teela, of course!) I really enjoyed your magazine, especially the posters inside. I am in sixth grade.

Aileen Pagan
Bronx, New York

Dear He-Man,

If I could help you on Eternia, I would break in to Snake Mountain and get rid of Skeletor. I am going to collect Masters of the Universe posters from your magazines. I am ten years old.

Kevin Jones
Geneva, Indiana

Dear He-Man,

Orko is funny when his magic goes wrong. I have an idea for a new hero. His name is Color-man, and he changes colors. First he is red, then he changes to blue or purple. I am seven years old.

Kyle Martin
Prague, Oklahoma

Dear He-Man,

For three years in a row, I got straight "A"s in school. I think that's a He-Man accomplishment! I am eleven years old, and I think you're terrific.

Morgan Kiederlen
Cassville, Wisconsin

Dear He-Man,

I am eight years old. I play football, and I am a center. I am quick to snap the ball to the quarterback. I tell everyone that I am a He-Man center!

Charley Turner
Chickasha, Oklahoma

Dear He-Man,

I am four years old, and since I can't come to Eternia, I would like you to come to my house. You can bring Skeletor, Teela, Orko, Fisto, Stridor, and Battle Cat. I think your friends and my friends would have fun playing together.

BRAVERY ON WALLOWA LAKE

Kurt Ehrler

Kurt Ehrler, our super He-Man of the Issue, has many different talents. He is a terrific athlete, a great pianist, and an Honor Roll student. Kurt also loves animals. And when an animal needed his help, Kurt was there.

One very cold morning, Kurt was walking to Wallowa Lake, near his home in Joseph, Oregon. He noticed that Baby, a tame deer from the Wildlife Refuge nearby, was following him.

At the frozen lake, Baby started walking across the ice. Suddenly, the ice cracked, and Baby fell in to the freezing water. Kurt knew that if he didn't rescue the deer, she would freeze to death in minutes. Knowing that his life was at risk, Kurt carefully moved across the ice. When he reached Baby, he lay on his stomach and inched toward her. Luckily, after several attempts, he was able to grab Baby's legs and pull her to safety.

When Baby was out of the water, ice immediately started forming all over her. Kurt took his jacket and sweatshirt and threw them over the deer, trying to keep her warm. With others helping, Kurt and Baby went back to his family's house to warm up.

Now, back in perfect health, Baby has become a special friend of Kurt's. Congratulations to Kurt for showing true He-Man strength and courage when he risked his own safety to save his animal friend.

FLOATING VISIONS

As Orko slept one night, he dreamed of the time when he was a baby magician learning how to float. At first, floating was very difficult because it took a lot of practice even to get up in the air.

Other Eternians appeared in his dream, and they were trying to float, too. But since they weren't magical like Orko, they couldn't get all the way off the ground. The harder they tried to float, the funnier they looked!

Orko laughed so hard in his sleep that he woke himself up with a loud chuckle. "Well," he thought, "practice does make perfect. Plus, a little magic helps!"

Can you see who was trying to float with Orko, and why Orko laughed so hard?

(Hint: Pick up the magazine and hold it straight out in front of you. You may want to close one eye. Now can you see who needs help floating?)

ASSAULT ON CASTLE GRAYSKULL

Story by Tina Harris Art by Adrian Gonzales Color by Cheryl Chalmers

Despite his fiendish force, foul Skeletor has found his every attempt to take Castle Grayskull foiled by noble He-Man and his Heroic Warriors. But now he has a clever plan more evil than any he has hatched before!

"Your vile plot proceeds as planned. I bring you Teela and Mekaneck—the first to fall to my dark magic!"

Webstor traps Buzz-Off in strands of sticky goo.

Man-At-Arms falls prey to Kobra Khan's evil mist.

Whiplash, with his crushing tail, drags Ram Man to join his friends behind bars.

It does look grim for the Heroic Warriors. While Evil-Lyn presents her prisoners to Skeletor, others fall to his diabolical plan.

Back at the Palace . . . "He-Man," cries Fisto, "Skeletor holds our allies hostage at Snake Mountain and is launching an attack on Castle Grayskull even as we speak! We are the only Heroic Warriors untouched by his evil plan!"

"He-Man, we're outnumbered!"
"Don't worry, Orko. We'll beat Skeletor at his own game. I've got a plan."

Orko and Man-E-Faces approach Snake Mountain. "Quickly, Orko—fade away! And I, in my most monstrous disguise, will play a trick on Tri-Klops' eyes."

"Hall, Tri-Klops! I am Eeyuck, dark monster of evil gloom! Skeletor sent me to relieve you at your post. You should meet him at Castle Grayskull at once!"
"I've never heard of you. What kind of trick is this?"

Man-E-Faces spins and sends the sinister sentry sprawling. His trick as Eeyuck worked!

CRRRACK! With a single mighty blow, Man-E-Faces smashes through the dark walls of Snake Mountain and frees his heroic friends.

"How did you find us, Man-E-Faces?"
"Details later, Teela. Quickly everyone! Back to Castle Grayskull. He-Man needs our help!"

"He-Man and Fisto, where are your friends now? Eternia will soon be mine, all mine! Ha ha ha ha haaaa!"

Skeletor stands before Castle Grayskull, his havoc staff raised. Can he breach the walls of Castle Grayskull and so rule Eternia? And can He-Man and Fisto alone defend the strange fortress of mystery and power from the madman's evil onslaught? Only time will tell.

With one powerful leap, He-Man surprises Skeletor, confronting him face to face.

"Not so fast, Bonehead! First you'll have to get past me... and my friends!"

"Your friends? How did they escape from my evil clutches? Attack, Evil Warriors, attack!"

"The Heroic Warriors?! Thiss cannot be!" Kobra Khan hisses. "We are undone! Retreat!"

As He-Man and Skeletor struggle, the Evil Warriors flee in terror. "Where are you going, you clods? Come back and help me fight!"

But Skeletor realizes that he is now outnumbered. He disappears in a puff of smoke.

"Thank you all, my friends. There is strength in numbers, and only together did we save Eternia."

THE DUKE OF LORIN

by Neal Michaels

One morning a messenger arrived at the Palace of Eternia bringing upsetting news to King Randor. Taboc, the Duke of Lorin—a forest region of Eternia—had been driven from his palace by Two Bad and his army of demons. Taboc had been forced to take refuge in the nearby forest. This was most upsetting to the King, since Taboc was one of his most trusted and beloved Dukes, as well as an old, dear friend. “Two Bad and his demons must be removed and Taboc must be restored to the rightful throne of the Dukedom!” said the King. “Oh, it pains me to think of that evil creature sitting on the throne of Lorin!”

Prince Adam was with his father when the message arrived. He saw his chance to help. “Don’t worry, father,” said the prince as he left the throne room. As soon as he was out of sight, he raised the Power Sword and said, “BY THE POWER OF GRAYSKULL!” Instantly he transformed into He-Man. He quickly devised a plan. “I’ll need help with my plan,” he

He-Man battles the Monstones, knocking them every which way. The once huge rock monsters now break apart. “First the Monstones, then YOU Skeletor!”

“ATTACK, my trusty stone creations.”

“Trapped by your own wicked creations, eh, Skeletor,” chuckles He-Man.

“You have won this time, He-Man, but I shall be back.”

“You have saved Eternia once again,” says King Randor, “You always come through, He-Man. At first, it looked like a very bumpy road.”

“And THAT it was. But to succeed at anything worthwhile, you have to expect some bumps. A smooth road comes only after you have reached your goal.”

thought. He searched the palace until he found Orko, who was practicing his juggling. "Orko, I need your help," said He-Man.

"Sure He-Man, what's up?" said the small magician.

He-Man quickly explained. "I'll also need Moss Man's help." The two went into the nearby woods where they found Moss Man. Once again He-Man explained what had happened.

"What are we waiting for?" asked Moss Man, when he heard of the Duke's trouble.

The three friends traveled to the Dukedom of Lorin. Orko disguised himself as a court jester and entered the palace.

"What do you want?" screamed Two Bad when Orko was brought before him. "I have no need of a jester!" But after Orko performed a few magic tricks, made some weapons fly around the room, and created a huge banquet for Two Bad and his demons, Two Bad changed his mind. "I like this ridiculous little creature," he said. "You may stay and be my official palace jester."

Days went by, until Orko had gained the confidence of Two Bad. One morning Orko came rushing in to tell Two Bad that he had heard that Duke Taboc had assembled an army in the forest. He was planning to storm the palace to take his throne back.

Two Bad flew into a rage. "How dare he think he can oppose me. You have done well, little jester," he said. With that, he sounded the battle cry and took his own army into the woods to try and stop Taboc before he could organize his troops.

Two Bad led his army, including Orko, deep into the forest. Orko directed them to the spot where Taboc's army was supposed to be camped. Suddenly, what looked like a tree behind Two Bad turned out to be Moss Man, who grabbed Two Bad from behind in a bear hug. At the same moment He-Man unexpectedly leaped out from behind a nearby tree. He used his Power Sword to create an energy field that surrounded the army of demons. He lifted them into the air with the energy field and flung them into the forest where they scattered in fear.

COMING TO THEATRES THIS SPRING

With the Hot Wheels® Railroad Freight Yard Set, the fun rolls on.

And on.

With hand-operated switches to guide the train into the freight yard or onto the open track.

And on.

With a turntable and roundhouse, just like a real railroad.

And on.

With a real working crane for hours of fun loading and unloading cargo.

And on.

Into the busy freight yard, complete with loading dock, fork lift and ramp for Hot Wheels cars.

And on.

With rugged, die-cast metal locomotive, box car, flat car and caboose. All have easy-to-use couplers and self-aligning wheels.

And on.

Until the end of the day, when the entire layout, with all thirteen action features, folds up into its own easy-to-store, easy-to-carry case.

Because it runs on imagination,
not electricity.

Hot Wheels Railroad Freight Yard.

Hot Wheels cars not included.
